

Terrifying mid-flight incident

10th June 2023

Lee Yoon-jun had a scary experience on an Asiana Airlines flight when his seatmate supposedly opened the emergency door during the flight. Lee felt very scared and questioned his life choices in that short moment. Strong wind blew away his things and made it hard for him to breathe. When he looked up, he saw clouds instead of the emergency door. Lee noticed his nervous seatmate and both of them were very scared. He didn't know at the time that his seatmate was responsible for opening the door. Lee thought there was something wrong with the plane at first. When the plane landed, the man next to him tried to jump from the still moving plane, but Lee and other passengers stopped him.

The police later arrested the man, saying he was mentally unstable. Luckily, none of the 200 passengers were seriously hurt, although some had trouble breathing. They are still investigating how the door could be opened during the flight. After the incident, Lee has been thinking about how life is fragile and how important it is to be thankful. He saw the passengers supporting and helping each other during the scary situation, which made him believe in people more. Lee wants everyone to remember the safety rules on airplanes and be careful while flying. He wants to enjoy his second chance and live a more exciting life. He is happy to share his story and hopes it encourages others to value and enjoy life.
